

Two Customers Contracted Legionnaire's Disease while Visiting a Dallas Spa

Posted on August 20, 2017

Two customers have filed a lawsuit against King Spa in Dallas who say they contracted Legionnaires' disease while visiting the 24-hour spa. The two customers did not know each other and visited on different dates but both developed serious health issues after their visit to King Spa & Sauna. Both customers used the spa's showers, saunas, hot tubs and pools. The lawsuit alleges that the customers inhaled Legionella bacteria that was in the spa's water system.

Two people got Legionnaire's disease at Dallas King Spa, lawsuit says
https://www.dallasnews.com/news/courts/2017/08/15/two-people-blame-dallas-king-spa-gotleionnaires-disease?utm_campaign=Echobox&utm_medium=Social&utm_source=Twitter ...

— Dallas Morning News (@dallasnews) 10:14 PM - Aug 15, 2017

DallasNews reported that the manager of the spa uses a chlorine water system that is regularly inspected. Legionella bacteria grows in fresh water, and can multiply rapidly, according to the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention.

Two people got Legionnaire's disease at Dallas King Spa, lawsuit says

A lawsuit has been filed against King Spa in Dallas by two people who say they contracted Legionnaires' Disease after visiting the 24-hour Korean...

DALLASNEWS.COM | BY CLAIRE BALLOR

Legionnaires' disease, which is treatable with antibiotics. the customers affected began with cough, fever and aches – one required hospitalization and later diagnosed with Legionnaires' disease. The lawsuit, which is seeking unspecified damages for failing to properly inspect water systems. READ MORE: HERE

.

.